

USFQ - HONOR CODE

As an exchange student at USFQ, you are subject to all USFQ academic and disciplinary regulations, including the USFQ Honor Code:

I, as a member of USFQ, promise to:

1. - Conduct myself in a manner that won't affect the personal and/or professional execution of activities of other persons inside the university community. This means, among other actions, I will avoid: slander, lies, greed, envy; I will promote kindness, acknowledgement, happiness, friendship, solidarity and the truth.
2. - Be honest: I won't copy, plagiarize, lie or steal in any way. I will sign all exams in recognition of the Code of Honor, stating that I haven't received help, nor have I copied from sources that are not allowed. I will keep all tests, exams and other information to myself, without disclosure.
3. - Respect and take care of the campus. This means all the physical things that make it up, and all its equipment.
4. - Not to defame or accuse.
5. - Report all actions from any member who does not respect the Code of Honor to the Dean of Students and cooperate with the Court of Honor to clear up any investigation or trial that is in violation of the Code.

Any infringement to this Code will be penalized by the corresponding authority. The student has the right to analyze and defend his/her case before the Court of Honor.

For more information about USFQ's Honor Code, please see the Dean of Students.
